About Moot Court Competition-2025

A moot court competition simulates a court hearing (usually an appeal against a final decision), in which participants analyze a problem, research the relevant law, prepare written submissions, and present oral arguments. Moot prepositions are typically set in areas of law that are unset it have been subject to recent developments. They usually involve two grounds of appeal, argued by each side. The procedure imitates what is followed in real courts: the judge enters, the mooters and the judge bow to each other, the clerk announces the matter, the mooters give their appearances and are then called on in turn to present their submissions, the judge asks questions to the mooters, the court adjourns, and the judge then returns to deliver a brief judgment and some feedback to the mooters. Mooting is not the same as public speaking or debating, although it shares some common elements with these activities. It is a specialized application of the art of persuasive advocacy. It has been part of the process of training lawyers for centuries and plays an important role in legal education. In this Moot Court Competition-2025, various teams of mooters will participate from undergraduate programs of Law and Forensic Science. Each team shall comprise of minimum of 2 & maximum of 3 students as mooters and researchers.

MOOT PREPOSITION:

"The Republic of Zindia is a peaceful nation with traditions and laws resembling those of India. Within this country lies the State of Rudrapradesh, home to the city of Murat."

Anusha Reddy and Dr. Nikhil Reddy were married on 18th February 2005 under the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. Anusha, a postgraduate in Economics, gave up her career ambitions after marriage to support Nikhil's aspirations. Nikhil, a practicing neurologist, rose rapidly in his profession, becoming the head of the neurology department at a reputed hospital in Murat by 2014. The couple lived in a luxurious apartment in Sangra Hills and appeared, outwardly, to lead an ideal married life. They were blessed with a daughter, Aarushi, born in 2008.

However, in 2017, Anusha noticed behavioural changes in Nikhil—frequent late nights, unexplained work travel, and very cold in married life. She found unfamiliar female clothing in their home closet and later, through Aarushi's school friend's mother, came to learn that Nikhil was frequently seen in the company of a young woman, later identified as Dr. Raina Das, a junior neurologist at the same hospital. Anusha hired a private investigator, who collected surveillance footage, hotel receipts, and even a confidential email from Nikhil's work account suggesting an ongoing affair.

When confronted, Nikhil denied the relationship and accused Anusha of paranoia. Matters escalated in 2019 when Anusha found a notarized agreement signed by Nikhil declaring Raina Das as his nominee for medical insurance, housing loan benefits, and emergency contact. Further inquiries revealed that Nikhil and Raina had jointly purchased a farmhouse on the outskirts of Murat and co-owned two properties in Avantika.

Devastated, Anusha filed a petition for divorce in 2020 under Sections 13(1)(i) and (ia) of the Hindu Marriage Act, citing extra marital affairs and cruelty. She also filed a claim under Section 25 of the Act for permanent alimony and maintenance. The trial court, after two years of hotly contested proceedings, granted divorce on the ground of mental cruelty, stating that though suspicion was reasonable, it did not meet the required evidentiary threshold. Anusha was granted ₹1.2 crore as permanent alimony, and monthly maintenance of ₹80,000 until she either remarried or became financially independent.

Nikhil appealed the decree, denying any misconduct and challenging the quantum of maintenance and alimony, claiming that Anusha had a hidden source of income from her family's agricultural business and that she had been running an online tuition platform.

The High Court upheld the divorce decree, reduced alimony to ₹75 lakhs, and ordered maintenance to continue for a period of five years only, subject to judicial review after three years. The court also allowed Nikhil to initiate separate proceedings for discontinuation if Anusha's financial condition improved substantially. Things took a strange turn in 2023. During enforcement proceedings, it came to light that Anusha was now living in a villa in Noa, allegedly cohabiting with a man named Vihaan Sen, a corporate consultant. Vihaan was formerly known to Nikhil, having previously been part of a consultancy team hired by the hospital. Nikhil moved to terminate maintenance payments on grounds that Anusha was in a live-in relationship, financially supported by Vihaan, and no longer legally entitled to maintenance under Section 25.

Anusha denied the allegations, stating that Vihaan was merely a tenant and friend, and that the Noa property was a gift from her maternal uncle, which she later rented to Vihaan due to financial strain. She claimed that Vihaan's presence in the villa was for temporary professional reasons and that there was no intimate relationship. Anusha also argued that the court-imposed condition of financial independence as a ground to terminate maintenance was vague, unenforceable, and violated her right to life and dignity under Article 21 of the Zindian Constitution. She further contended that courts cannot penalize a divorced woman for exercising her right to companionship in a non-marital setup, and that "financial dependency" must be interpreted contextually in light of lifestyle, opportunity cost, and health status.

Nikhil produced WhatsApp chats, surveillance photos, and joint vacation receipts to support his claim. He argued that the continuation of maintenance in such a scenario was morally unjust, legally unwarranted, and that he had since remarried and had another child, thereby increasing his financial responsibilities. He also invoked Article 14, asserting that men, too, have a right to protection from lifetime financial obligations in an era of constitutional gender equality.

Anusha responded by filing a cross-petition challenging the constitutional validity of discontinuing maintenance based on live-in relationships, arguing that personal law cannot override constitutional protections, and that a divorced woman's autonomy cannot be used against her to deny basic financial security. She sought a constitutional interpretation of Section 25 of the Hindu Marriage Act in line with evolving gender jurisprudence.

The matter was escalated to the Supreme Court in 2025 after both parties filed Special Leave Petitions, challenging the High Court's decree in parts. The questions raised include proof of cohabitation, the evidentiary standard for discontinuing maintenance, and the constitutionality of denying financial support based on a woman's choice to live outside traditional marital constructs.

ISSUES:

1. Whether the continuation or discontinuation of maintenance under Section 25 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, can be justified on the ground of a divorced woman's alleged live-in relationship or financial support from a third person.
2. Whether the condition of "financial independence" imposed by the court for discontinuation of maintenance is legally sustainable, and who bears the burden of proof to establish substantial financial improvement of the recipient spouse
3. Whether circumstantial evidence such as shared residence, communication, and financial transactions is sufficient to establish cohabitation or companionship amounting to a live-in relationship for the purpose of terminating maintenance under Section 25.
4. Whether cohabitation or companionship outside marriage can constitute sufficient legal and moral ground to discontinue maintenance, or whether such an interpretation amounts to judicial overreach beyond the legislative intent of Section 25 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955.
5. Whether Section 25 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 should be interpreted in a gender-neutral manner to align with the evolving principles of constitutional morality, equality, and protection of both spouses from perpetual financial obligations post-divorce.

APPLICABLE LAWS:

1. Hindu Marriage Act, 1955
2. Constitution of India
3. Code of Civil Procedure, 1908
4. Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005
5. India Sakshya Adhiniyam, 2023
6. India Nagrik Suraksha Adhiniyam, 2023
