ABOUT ADRC

The Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) Cell at Dharmashastra National Law University (DNLU) is a dedicated body focused on promoting and facilitating the understanding and practice of alternative methods of conflict resolution, such as arbitration, mediation, and conciliation. At DNLU, the ADR Cell plays a significant role in fostering a culture of dialogue, negotiation, and peaceful resolution among students. It conducts workshops, training sessions, and events designed to equip students with practical skills in ADR methods. The cell is a hub for academic and practical exposure, engaging with experts and professionals in the field to provide students with first-hand learning opportunities. One of the key highlights of the ADR Cell's activities was the organization of the National Rounds for the Louie M. Brown And Forrest S. Mosten International Client Consultation Competition (ICCC), 2022. This prestigious competition emphasizes the client-counsel interaction, assessing law students on their ability to offer legal advice, negotiate settlements, and display interpersonal skills during a client interview scenario. Hosting this competition at the national level solidified DNLU's position as a leader in ADR education and provided participants a platform to showcase their client- counselling skills.

DETAILS OF THE COMPETITION

The competition allows participants to hone their practical skills of communicating with the clients through a simulation of a real client-counsel interaction. As, interviewing and advising the client constitutes a vital part of a lawyer's work. Good conversation skills, including counselling ability, form a valuable part of a lawyer's skill set. It is often assumed that lawyers possess the listening and questioning skills requisite to conduct an effective interview with a client. Unfortunately, however, this is not true of every lawyer. Thus, through this Competition, it is intended to inculcate among students of law a greater knowledge of counselling functions of law practice and to imbibe in them a spirit of enquiry into the preventive law. The Competition also encourages and helps the students of law to develop interviewing, planning, and analytical skills necessary to build and maintain a healthy professional relationship between a lawyer and their client.

The competition will host a maximum number of 30 participating teams. We promise to provide you with an enthralling experience and take it to new heights by making it a memorable experience for all the participating teams.
